SOME NEW IDEAS.

BEVERAL FASHION FANCIES FOR ALL TIMES AND PLACES.

Whether We Like Cloth, Organdy or Silk Gowns, With or Without Gorgeous Display of Trimmings, All Can Be Suited This Season-Satin Still Holding Its Own.

Fashion is at high tide now that the festive season is at hand. All its intents and purposes are bent on devising striking and elaborate gowns.

An unsually pretty combination, says the New York Sun, which can be useful anywhere and must at least look cool, is of palest green crepon shot with gold. Around the skirt are three grad-uated flounces of crepon edged with narrow black satin and covered with lovely ivory colored lace and arranged with immense bishop sleeves of the pale green crepon, drawn into a band at the waist and finished on the shoulders with deep cape epaulets of black satin. The belt is black satin ribbon drawn through a small buckle of brilliants. A small pelerine of black satin, with the fronts turned back and covered with lace and the neck finished with a large bow of pale blue mousseline de soie, is worn with this costume.

A simple foulard gown given in the illustrations is of apricot color, powdered with tiny white and black spots. At the neck is a round voke of ecru lace over white satin, and the full waist is drawn in by a deep black satin belt, with two bows fastened with buckles The skirt is full, with some narrow accordion plaitings, headed by a narrow roll of satin.

Another gown not quite so severe in style is composed of three shades of green. The skirt is of the dark shade, bordered with a wide bias band of a pale shade, headed by two rows of narrow pet. The waist and sleeves are of the dark cloth, and the directoire revers and plastron of the lightest shade. The double shoulder cape is of the medium shade and has a deep lace flounce underneath and a lace collar.

Another pretty and striking dress is of rose colored crocodile and crepe de chine faintly shot with a pearly shade of gray. The full skirt is trimmed with black satin ribbon, which is arranged in three long ends from the waist almost to the hem, each end terminating in a chou bow. At the extreme edge of the skirt there is a narrow black satin ruffle. The bodice is trimmed with black guipure lace insertion over rose pink silk. The sleeves are of black satin with double

For gloomy, rainy days, when silks and laces and delicate colors look out of place, there are tailor made gowns which are equally useful. A very simple and effective one is made of white and black striped wool, with plain white wool for trimming. Three wide bands of white, which do not cross the front breadth, trim the skirt, with black buttons at the pointed ends. The jacket and plain bodice are of white wool, with full up-per sleeves of the stripe, the lower part being of white, with a row of black buttons to the elbow.

A pair of blue denim curtains that is pretty has huge sprays of pink and white apple blossoms, with stems in brown and leaves in green, cut from cretonne and pasted on with embroiderers' paste, then buttonholed with short, far apart stitches done in appropriate shades of crewels. The blossoms are grouped effeetively, falling from the upper right hand corner, with petals dropped here and there below. It is finished with a 3-inch hem, feather stitched with alter-nate rows of the colors used in the embroidery, and a fringe also of these colors.

Lobster Salad.

Take off the shell from three lobsters or use three pounds canned lobsters; slice the flesh carefully and let pickle for 15 minutes with oil and vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of each, some salt and pepper. Take and clean three lettuces. ispose the leaves on a hollow dish, place the lobster on those leaves and pour over it all about one pint mayonnaise auce. To give a fine appearance to the dish, dispose gently on it some hard boiled eggs cut in fours, some lettuce OLD papers for the next week at 10 leaves, some green olives, etc., and serve cold.

Plain, Plaited or With Full Jabot-They

Women are shirt waist crazy. ing, calico, silk, satin and mull have been levied upon, converted into a back-less blouse, belted over or under a skirt and finished off with a jacket or blazer. Some are tucked, some have butterfly revers, others are frilled, and all are fussy, comfortable and moderately pretty. The novelty is known in the trade as the serpentine waist. The fronts, instead of being permanent, are loose and long enough to fold over the breast, kerchief fashion, and tie in the back.

For the plaid silks and silk crape the buyer pays more than she would for a dress pattern of imported suiting. However, shirt waists are the rage. One of our illustrations has a frill of foulard around the bottom of the shirt waist, but it need not be put on if the skirt is to be worn over it. A very pretty skirt can be made of the same material as the blouse and garnished with insertions of lace. Any pretty wash silk or even cam-bric can be used for the other model, which is plain in the back, save for a few plaits at the waist. The front has a full jabot, which must be allowed for when each side is cut. It is held in place by draw strings, which will give the blouse a better appearance after being laundered. The sleeves are quite full, and a belt 2 inches in width is worn.

A bowl of lettuce salad can be made to look very pretty by the use of stuffed eggs in the place of plain mayonnaise Boil the eggs hard, then cut in half and remove the yolk. Mix this with pepper, salt, vinegar and oil. A suspicion of mustard sometimes improves it. Fill the whites with this mixture and put the two halves together again. These served with the salad are not only attractive, but delicious.

How to Lace a Corset.

Those clever Frenchwomen have discovered a new way of lacing their cor-sets, or rather they have adopted it from the Russians.

Of course it is horrid to lace tight, but if you will do it this new way is the only way that won't hurt because it calls for three pieces of lacings and there isn't the old torturing uniform pressure above and below the waist.

You put the first lacing at the top down in the usual way on each side un-til you reach two eyelet holes above the Do the same thing with the second, lacing from the bottom, leaving the two eyelet holes free below the waist. In these four eyelets—four on each side —you now put the third lace, that which is to be drawn.

Don't you see, you can leave the upper and lower parts as loose as you choose, tying each to your comfort? After that you can draw in your waist with the middle lacing quite independently.

A woman lacing her corset this way once will never lace it differently. No matter how loose she wears it, this is the only proper method.

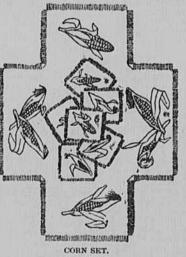

Custard on Tonst.

Take a quart of milk and put it on the fire and allow it to come to the boiling point, then season and add 2 well beaten eggs. Boil a minute, and pour over 6 slices of buttered toast. Put in the oven Pineapple Sherbet.

Take a large, fully ripened pineapple, peel it and cut out the eyes, leaving the top on. With a stout fork pick the fruit off in little bits, leaving nothing but the hard core. Drain the fruit as free of its juice as is possible and put the pulp over a fire in a pint of water, in which let it simmer 15 minutes. Make a simp by boiling together a pint of water and a pint of sugar. Rub the fruit through a coarse sieve and add it to the boiling sirup, after which let it boil 15 minutes add the juice drained from the fruit, let the mixture cool and then freeze it.

The cover and doilies for hot corn herewith presented are made of white linen embroidered with light yellow and green wash silk. The cover for folding around the corn and one dozen doilies form a complete set. The size of the cover depends on the size of the dish the corn is served on. The embroidery should be on the outside when it is folded around the corn. Seven inches square makes a good doily. These have fringe half an inch deep around them.
